The United States is familiar territory to His Holiness Pope Paul VI. He was a leisurely tourist here in 1951 and returned in 1960 for a quick trip to several major cities.

The new Pope's first trip to North America was by his own description, a holiday tour. He WASHINGTON—Congress has produced a flurry of bills to lessen what sponsors see as damage to the nation's religious underpinnings from the Supreme Court's Bible decision. Several prominent legislators jointly have sponsored a proposed constitutional amendment to override the court's June 17 ruling against Bible reading and the Lord's Prayer in public schools. None of the proposals is given much chance of adoption.

PROVIDENCE, R.I.—Parents of private school pupils have set wheels in motion to assist their children in making requests to borrow tax-paid textbooks under the state's new law. Rhode Island begins next September to lend dignity to parochial and other private school pupils, in three subjects: science, mathematics and modern foreign language. The books are to be selected from a list approved by the state department of public instruction and made available to the parents of the lending program with the state agency.

BOSTON—Boston's Catholic Interparochial Council has urged the city's educators to recognize the problem of "de facto" segregation in the public schools. The CIC issued a statement as 2,000 pupils from junior and senior high schools boycotted their classes in Boston's first organized protest against alleged segregation. Asking confidence in the protest organization, the CIC notes that the time has come to atone for the public's guilt in racial matters.

PATERSON, N.J.—Pateron's Bishop James J. Navagh issued a statement here asking "the entire Catholic community" to assist Negroes in gaining their rights. "Our Negro fellow citizens," he said, "are at present in a struggle to secure for themselves the rights that are justly theirs by the law of God and the Constitution of the United States. They ask for respect for their dignity as human beings and an end to unjust discrimination... which denies them in fact what the law guarantees."

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Religious groups have helped bring about an improved attitude toward the aging, the secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Charities here, Msgr. Raymond J. Gallagher told the annual University of Michigan conference on aging that the nation has swung in the middle in attitudes toward aging.

He said that religious groups have brought about the improvement "through conferences and an exchange of information."

Abroad

LONDON—The ruling Labor Party in Australia will not budge from its opposition to government aid to Catholic and other private schools, the party's leader has declared here. Arthur Calwell insisted that state grants to non-public schools are not possible under the present Commonwealth constitution. Calwell, who is a Catholic, said that demonstrations by the Catholic parents against the government's policy which included mass transfers of students from Catholic to public schools, would have "no backward effect" in the school discussions.

SEOUL, Korea—The conflict in Vietnam between Buddhists and the government of President Ngo dinh Diem has caused repercussions among Buddhists in Korea. Vietnam's Buddhists have been demonstrating recently against alleged discrimination by the Vietnam government. The Korean Buddhist association has called on all Buddhists in the Far East to protest strongly against the treatment of Buddhists in Vietnam.

SAIGON—Two new bishops appointed by the late Pope John XXIII for dioceses in communist North Vietnam have been consecrated there, according to reports received here. Both are candidates with right of succession. Meanwhile, as far as can be learned, North Vietnam authorities are still preventing two bishops-elect named earlier for vacant dioceses from receiving episcopal consecration.

MADRAS, India—The number of sterilization operations in Madras state's family planning centers has fallen off following the stopping of a promotion campaign sponsored by the state government. In the promotion campaign, canvassers went out village urging men and women to have the operation for a 30-rupie ($8.30) grant from the state. Canvassers received 10 rupies ($2.10) for each sterilization they promoted.

DAR ES SALAAM—Tanganyika's Education Minister praised the "valuable contribution" that Christian voluntary agencies are making to education in "our rapidly developing country."

At a joint meeting of the education secretaries of the Christian Council of Tanganyika Catholic Episcopal Conference, S. N. Elnfuo stated: "It is not the government's intention to nationalize schools and thereby deprive them of their present competent and highly experienced owners and managers."

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo—A month-old teachers' strike throughout the Congo shows "no notable development," the head of the Congo's Catholic school system said. Father Martin Ekwa, S.J., a Congolese priest who is president of the Catholic Office of Education here, described the school situation as "dismal." The strike involves 37,500 teachers and affects more than a million pupils.

SAO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic—Blas Roca, a Cuban communist leader, has said that the Cuban government "recognized the freedom of cuts and individuals" but he predicted that religion will eventually disappear, according to Radio Havana. Religion "will disappear when we achieve elimination of the causes from which it rises, which give it origin and sustain it."

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana—The general strike which has gripped British Guiana for eight weeks has been declared a just strike by the Catholic Standard newspaper. The paper itself has not been published since the strike began, but was given permission by the Trades Union Council to bring out its special issues on the occasion of Pope John's death. The strike is against the leftist government of Premier Cheddi Jagan.

BONN—Germany's Catholic "peace corps" is the model and cornerstone for a new national corps founded in the presence of President John F. Kennedy in West German President Heinrich Lübke's residence here. The new corps, called the German Development Service, follows the example of the U.S. Peace Corps, but it will cooperate with all private organizations active in this work. These organizations are members of the new service.

VIENNA—The acting head of the Catholic hierarchy in Hungary, Bishop Endre Hanvass of Csanad, has been quoted as saying that there has been a substantial increase in the number of young men seeking to enroll in Hungarian seminaries. The Catholic weekly Uj Ember (New Man) said, however, that Bishop Hanvass voiced regret that today there are not students from Hungary in the two major seminaries abroad for Hungarians—the German-Hungarian College in Rome and the Pazarneum in Vienna.

Among the first dramatic highlights of the new Pope's reign may be the release and reinstatement of Archbishop Josef Beran of Prague, who was banished from his See by Czechoslovakia's Communist government more than 12 years ago. In a press statement made just before the College of Cardinals gathered in Rome to elect Pope Paul VI, a government spokesman declared that "questions concerning Archbishop Beran and other Church-State matters can be solved by direct negotiations with the Vatican."

Unions must protect rights of all workers

By Msgr. George Higgins

Last week's column reviewed this writer's position on the subject of racial discrimination in the labor movement. I stated that discrimination against Negro workers on the part of labor unions is clearly immoral and given labor's traditional moral claim to leadership in the field of social justice, it also is hypocritical.

One approach is that of the Philadelphia chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which recently threw a mass picket line around a Federally financed construction project from which Negro journeymen were being systematically excluded.

In their criticism of organized labor's unsatisfactory record in the field of race relations.

In this connection, I would warn against the fallacy of arguing—as some of labor's critics do—that racial discrimination in unions is due almost exclusively to the selfishness of so-called labor bosses and that it would be quickly eliminated if the rank-and-file had anything to say about it.

This argument comes up again in an article by Myrna Rapp in the June 4 issue of the National Review. Miss Rapp's faith in the pristine virtue of rank-and-file union members runs counter to most of the evidence which has come to our attention.

It is our impression that in any firm not most of the unions which are practicing racial discrimination, the elected officers are less at fault than rank-and-file, who, for economic reasons, very often tend to be more susceptible to racial prejudice than their top officials.

In any event, racial discrimination on the part of unions—regardless of who is primarily responsible for it—is intolerable. The tragic part is that some of the offending unions seem to be surprised that the Negro community has turned sour on their policies of white liberalism.

As Paul Jacobs of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions points out in a recent study on collective bargaining, labor leaders—and rank-and-file members—ought to be able to understand that "the attitude of articulate Negroes toward union leaders in their roles as white liberals is different from the attitude of those Negroes toward the rest of the white community." (Old Forum, August 28, 1962.)

The labor unions must expect both white and Negro communities in this country to judge their performance in the field of race relations against a considerably higher ethical standard than the one generally applied to other groups in our society. The reason for this is that the purpose of labor unions and indeed their only reason for existence is to protect the rights of workers, regardless of race, creed or color.

Many countries have paid tribute to the deep concern of our late Holy Father Pope John XXIII for all men. This great solicitude, expressed continually in an ever attentive Pope John, reinforced, motivated him to the end, as evidenced by those wonderful words of love and benediction spoken during his last hours.

WHAT OF THE DAY

By Rev. John Dornan

The experts said it wouldn't happen, but it did. Cardinal Montini went into the conclave as Pope and came out a Pope. Though the most "papabile" is often not elected, in this case he was. We have Pope Paul.

Since Pope Paul is relatively young, we can expect that he will have a rather long reign as Vicar, and we can join the many in wondering just what the tendencies of his leadership will be. Will he be a conservative, will he be a liberal, will he be a middle-of-the-roader? Each group will hope that he will belong to them.

In assessing the new Pope I would remind my readers of what I pointed out at the beginning of the Vatican Council, that the terms conservative and liberal as used at the council are actually the opposite of the way they are used in America at the present.

The conservatives in Rome are those who want to centralize the Church's government, break down the power of the Curia, build up the home-rule of the Bishops.

Notice the difference. In America at the present the liberals are the ones who seek the ever-increasing power of the central, or Federal government, the bureaucracy which must inevitably follow a centralized government, and the destruction of states' rights.

Assessing Pope Paul VI

termining factor in the council's rejection of the too juridical presentation made to it by the Curia, and of the council's following the lead of Pope John.

Judging from the actions of Pope Paul at the Vatican Council, one can, I think, foresee in him the further blossoming of the work of Pope John, the "bringing up-to-date" the Church's apostolate to the world.

300 to compete for golf honors in CYO tourney

More than 300 teen-age golfers (and a sprinkling of adults) will converge on the Willowbrook Golf Course in Indianapolis on Saturday, June 29, to vie for trophies in the sixth annual Junior CYO Golf Tournament.

Many of the youngsters will be rank duffers out for the air and exercise, but quite a few will be taking the tournament seriously and will play top calibre golf. (The tournament record is a two-under-par 53 shot by Bob Damsman a few years back.)

The golfers will compete in two basic divisions: Freshman-Sophomore and Junior-Senior. Those between the Sophomore and Junior years may choose to play in either category. In addition, both adult men and women may compete for separate awards.

THE EVENTS in each division include Boys' Individual, Girls' Individual, Boys' Team and Mixed Team. In addition to team awards, individual trophies will be presented to the top six boys golfers and the five best girl golfers in the tournament.

Blind Par awards will be given and a special trophy for the drive nearest the hole on No. 18 and a special trophy for the drive nearest the hole on No. 18.

Golfers are asked to arrive at the course within the time limits set up by the CYO Office for the convenience of those living a great distance away.

THE HIGHLIGHT of the day for many will be the annual hamburger cook-out which will be held on the course beginning at approximately 5:45 p.m. Potato chips, soft drinks and ice cream will be included for a nominal 50 cents per person. CYO Office records indicate that more than 100 hamburgers disappeared during last year's cook-out. The food is provided on an "all-you-can-eat" basis.

Green fee for tournament participants will be $1.25, a reduction of 25 cents from the regular week end charge. Course officials are donating $50 toward the purchase of trophies for the tourney.

CYO rules stipulate that no player keep his own score and that all putts be made — no "zimmers." Clubs may be rented at the clubhouse for a nominal fee for those who do not have their own set. The boys will play 18 holes and the girls nine holes.

CYO Swim Meet dates finalized

The CYO Office announced this week that the annual Archdiocesan Junior CYO Swim Meet will definitely be held on Monday, July 15, and Tuesday, July 16, at the Broad Ripple Pool in Indianapolis.

Preliminaries will be held on Monday evening with the finals scheduled for Tuesday evening. If it is not possible to complete the meet in two days due to the size of the entry list, Monday and Tuesday will be used for the preliminary heats and the finals will be held on Wednesday, July 17.

If it is necessary to use the three-evening schedule, the CYO Office will notify all parishes.

TWO-OUT-OF-THREE FOR ST. ROCH—Baseball championships, that is. St. Roch won its second Indianapolis Deaneary CYO Cadet Spring League title in three years June 9, clinching an undefeated season with a 10-4 triumph over previously unbeaten St. Christopher at Ellenberger Park. The new champions also won the Division Three crown with seven straight victories, then beat St. Bernadette's Division Four champions, 5-0, in the first round of the playoffs. Head coach Marvin Northcutt is at the right end of the back row. Flanking the back row on the left are Father Timothy Healey, O.F.M., Priest Moderator for the St. Roch CYO, and Assistant Coach Larry Worthington.

ALMOST A THREE-SPORT WINNER—St. Christopher's CYO Cadet Spring Baseball team, shown here, narrowly missed the honor of bringing the parish its third Indianapolis Deaneary major sports championship of the school year. After winning the football and track championships, the lads set out after the baseball crown, swept their way through Division One, defeated St. Luke in the first round of the playoffs, and made it a close fight for six innings in the final game, only to fall before St. Roch's late surge, 10-4. Still, when the season's accomplishments are added up, these boys did an excellent job, and it took a really fine team to beat them out of that third title. Shown with the boys are Head Coach Joe Morrison (back row, right), Assistant Coach Jim Rolles (back row, fourth from right), Priest Moderator Father Paul Richard and Assistant Coach Oscar Bender are standing at the left of the back row.

Plan Novice Swim Meet

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — St. Charles parish Junior CYO unit will play host to the first annual Junior CYO Novice Swim Meet on Saturday, July 6. The popular event will be held at the Racine Francis Pool in Brown County beginning at 4 p.m.

CYO novice eligibility rules will apply. The meet will include 18 separate events and is open to boys and girls from all parishes in the Archdiocese. Entry fees are 15 cents for each individual event and 50 cents for each relay team. Ribbons will be awarded to the first three places and a traveling trophy for the top team.

Entries should be mailed to Susan Byrne, Reister Drive, Route 2, Bloomington, Ind., no later than July 3.

Franciscans name nine new principals

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Nine new principals have been named to schools in the Archdiocese staffed by Franciscan Sisters of Immaculate Conception Convent here.

Sister Mary Edwin, former principal of St. Bernadette's School, Indianapolis, was appointed to head the faculty of the new St. Gabriel's School, which will open in Indianapolis this September.

Pope visits ailing cardinal

VATICAN CITY—His Holiness Pope Paul VI made his first trip outside the Vatican on his first full day as Pope.

After rising at 6 a.m., Pope Paul offered Mass at 6:30 in the private chapel of his apartment. Assisted him was his private secretary, Magr. Giovanni Macchi.

During his first morning (June 22), he received in audience Cardinal Amleto Cicognani, Papal Secretary of State...

He also visited the Vatican groves to pray at the tomb of Pope John XXIII and at the tombs of other popes buried there.

On Monday (June 24) at 10 a.m. Rome time, he received the clergy of his new diocese, Rome. At noon on Monday he received diplomats accredited to the Holy See.

Two renew vows at Lady of Grace

BEECH GROVE, Ind. — Two Sisters of St. Benedict of Our Lady of Grace convent here renewed their temporary vows for an additional two years during ceremonies in the convent chapel on Sunday, June 23.

Sister Mary Howard Savage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Savage of Sullivan, Ind., and Sister Laura Duffey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Duffey of Albany, were the first to enter the Benedictine convent here as postulants in 1958.

The most touching sequence, with a note of foreboding, shows the disorder imposed on nature by the atomic bomb (Hiroshima) as gulls nesting on eggs that will never hatch, sea turtles crawling inland to die in the sand because they've lost their sense of direction.

The film effectively blasts the Chinese custom of depositing the ailing and sick in detention camps to await their end, and includes an instructive study of New Guinea Stone Age men. We see them, beautifully photographed, receiving Communion at the Catholic mission, then on a hillside staring stonily into the sky awaiting the arrival of the sacred cargo planes they've seen resting for the white man at Mt. Moru.

When it is not making the point that there is an uncomfortably close link between beauty and death, "Mondo" almost seems almost anti-human. The drunkards of Hamburg—drinking, sleeping, staggering home (Hamburg) as gulls nesting on eggs that will never hatch, sea turtles crawling inland to die in the sand because they've lost their sense of direction.

"Mondo" is severely concerned with cruelty; there is not a front of the camera, but behind it. (Legion of Decency: A-4)

Four Benedictine nuns to mark 25th jubilee

BEECH GROVE, Ind. — Four Sisters of St. Benedict of Our Lady of Grace convent here will observe their 25th jubilee in religious profession during ceremonies June 30 at Our Lady of Grace convent here.

A High Mass of Thanksgiving will be offered at 10 a.m. in the convent chapel for the jubilarians: Sister M. Eugenia Berhel, Sister M. Louis Varzel, Sister M. Angeline Preske and Sister Mary Gerald Messner.

Three of the four have taught in various schools conducted by the Benedictine Sisters in the Archdiocese and the Diocese of Evansville. Sister M. Angeline has been a housekeeper throughout her religious life. All four are natives of the Diocese of Evansville.

SISTER M. EUGENIA, who has been assigned to St. Paul's Hermitage in Beech Grove for the coming year, has taught at St. Paul, Beech Grove, Seymour, and St. Mary, St. Mary-of-the-Knobs, in addition to schools of the Evansville Diocese.

Pilot migrant projects reported 'successful'

DES MOINES, Iowa—Three national Catholic agencies have reported success in a group of pilot projects carried on over the past three years aimed at aiding migrant farm workers of Mexican origin.

The projects were conducted in the states of Arizona, Texas, Nevada, Calif., and the north-central States by the National Catholic Rural Life Conference, the Bishops' committee for the Hispanic Speaking, and the Bishops' Committee for Migrant Workers.

Though "limited in number and scope," a report on the projects issued by Rural Life Conference headquarters here says, they have shown the "import and feasibility" of vocational training and other forms of assistance for Mexican-American migrants and their families.

"MORE and larger projects along these lines are urgently needed," the report says. It expresses the willingness of the three Catholic agencies to cooperate in more such projects and also cites need for other organizations to undertake similar programs "in order that the great needs of Mexican-Americans may be more effectively met."

The pilot projects were carried on with the aid of a $90,000 grant from the Charles E. Merrill Trust. The project in San Antonio, where many Mexican-Americans reside permanently and many others spend part of the year, was on counseling migrants prior to their departure for jobs in other states; helping them find work in the area; giving job training; and assisting them with social and personal problems.

The project included an employment office which placed more than 3,000 Mexican-Americans in permanent or temporary jobs, trainee schools for farm workers, warehousemen, service station attendants and vegetable packers, and an information program.

THE NORTH-CENTRAL states project focused on five small cities in the area—Racine, Wis., Saginaw, Mich., Lansing, Mich., Rochelle, Ill., and Fremont, Ohio. The service included vocational training, educational assistance, free legal counsel, and assistance in finding homes and jobs.

Major goals of the Stockton project were aiding the integration of Mexican-Americans in the community where they reside and helping them obtain adequate jobs and wages. Other services included a cooperative food store, a credit union, a health clinic and a dining hall.

BOOKS OF THE HOUR

A poet's meditations

By D. B. THEALL, O.S.B.

From the manifold writings of the great French poet-dramatist-theologian-statesman Paul Claudel, a wonderful mosaic of his great meditations has been made up, with the title "I Believe in God: A Meditation in 110 Chapters" (1101 L, Rinehart, a and Wison, $6.50).

The editor of this fine anthology is Mlle. Agnes de Sarmiento, and the translator, Helen Weaver. Fr. Henri de Lubac, S.J., contributes a very fine Introduction, justifying the presentation of a series of poetic elaborations upon what are, after all, the basic truths of the Faith, which he has all learned in simple and unadorned fashion, in the Creed itself.

But "Divine truth," Fr. de Lubac points out, "by its very nature is not a finished product, but a great need, in its formulation, of help from the imagination. . . . The poet continues to decipher the language of things around us in order to find new correspondences," and so he often helps the ordinary Catholic to see the hidden beauties of Scripture better than the learned scholars and exegetes.

Certain themes were favorites of Claudel: the relation between the individual and the Church, for instance; the might of God's word made flesh, then preached after extended to mankind; and the relation between Mary and the Church. Again, for Claudel, God is not only a Power over us, but a Source continually breathing forth from within us.

Toward the end of his life (he died in 1955), Claudel renounced such fame as there might be that of statesman or writer. He said:

"The general purpose of my life was to write a great book, and a great impulse toward divine joy, and the attempt to re-constitute the whole world in this movement. How I wish that Claudel the writer would disappear completely, and that from beneath the ridiculous trappings of the literary man would emerge the man who is incontestably here, that is, the servant of God; the man passionately devoted to the glory, the truth, and the love of God."

How well he succeeded in this purpose, these meditations on the articles of the Creed make clear; the only way to convey a sense of their beauty and usefulness to the Catholic who has for too long seen the Creed only as a mere legal formula, is to quote some of the passages.

"On the dignity of the Christian who believes in the Creed: 'The Christian is a man who knows what he is doing and where he is going in a world of men who, worse than heathen, boasts, no longer know the difference between good and evil, between yes and no. He is like a g. . . standing out in a crowd of invalids and alcoholics, not by his own right, but because he has placed himself in harmony with all nature by subordinating himself to the proper authority.'"

The flame that is the Holy Spirit is "fire that unites in Paradise, purifies in Purgatory, and cauterizes in Hell." And that flame is also "a glowing breath which purifies, dilates, pacifies, clarifies, and places in a state of suspension, order, and clear visibility: the various faculties of our nature, allowing nothing to resist its divine Cause."

On belonging to the Church: "We have at our command not

LAUDED BY NCRLC

National Service Corps seen boon to farmers

WASHINGTON — The National Catholic Rural Life Conference has stated that volunteers for the proposed National Service Corps would be a tremendous help on America's rural front. The NCRLC executive committee urged support at its meeting here for legislation for the corps, currently being called the Domestic Peace Corps. At the same time, the committee recommended the smothering of any efforts to revise the program (Public Law 78) under which Mexican nationals are imported to work on U.S. farms.

COADJUTOR Bishop John J. Morkovsky of Galveston Houston, NCRLC president and episcopal advisor, presided at the executive committee meeting, attended by some 130 members. In its 12-page (June 19) statement, the committee also:

- Said "there is an urgent need for assistance to young people who wish to enter agriculture."
- Recommended that "all farmers and their various organizations be banded together in commodity-wide marketing associations to achieve the goal of a fair and stabilized price" for their produce.
- Endorsed the conclusions of the recently held World Food Congress here calling for an all-out war on hunger and malnutrition.
- Commended the efforts of Catholic Relief Services, National Catholic Welfare Conference and other voluntary agencies in assisting developing nations.
- Urged remedial legislation to render the U.S. Food for Peace program more effective.

In recommending support for the National Service Corps, the NCRLC committee said the tasks to which corps volunteers "could be assigned in helping migrants are almost endless, and all of them urgent."

The corporation, for example, could help expand educational services and opportunities for the children of migrant families. "The policy statement continued, 'Corpsmen would help by tutoring, by seeking out the children and getting them to the proper classes, and by keeping records on the children as they move.'"

The statement said the corporation could help improve housing conditions in the camps, build recreational facilities for children and organize adult recreation programs.

The committee made one specific recommendation "on the use of certain National Service Corps volunteers for work in the chronically distressed rural areas." It said such volunteers could learn about the programs and funds available to meet the needs of the people in these areas. The techniques for developing projects receiving support from these programs, and the methods of developing local leadership in such projects.

THE COMMITTEE said that after briefing in these three areas, the volunteers would "be sent into the communities and among the peoples, where they can inform, interpret, and serve as catalysts and coordinators for both individual and community improvement under legislative programs already in existence."

"The committee lauded as a 'victory for the forces of reform' the recent voting down by the House of Representatives of a proposed extension of the Mexican farm labor program (Public Law 78).

"After years of waging what most people considered a hopeless battle against the continuation of the bracero program, the conference and its allies can rightly take pride in this victory," the policy statement said.

It warned, however, that "efforts are even now under way in both the House and Senate to revive the program."

"We most emphatically urged Congress to reject these efforts," the statement continued, "and urged that all citizens communicate with their senators and representatives their insistence that Public Law 78 not be reinstated."

IN REGARD to the Food for

FARMER'S VIEW Conservation

By DANA C. JENNINGS

It seems weird to hear talk of "surplus farms" in such a hungry world. It is not weird, however, that we have displayed in the past. After all, God gave the land to everybody for always, not just to us, not just for now.

Agriculture Secretary, Orville Freeman recently paired food overproduction and recreation area shortage as major problems and remarked, "I believe the answer to one can be found in the solution to the other—thus actually applying a basic principle of conservation." He obviously realizes that conservation does not mean hoarding or non-use, but using resources for the best long-term advantage to the most people on a sustained yield or rehabilitating basis.

Certainly hillside retired from cultivation will add to recreation, water and wood and wildlife supply while subtracting from flood and erosion dangers. Other borderline areas, by a few years of rest and revegetation, can be made productive again against the time when they will again be needed for food production.

Let us hope that further intelligence will be added to this wise move and measures taken to prevent urban sprawl, housing developments, supermarkets, highways and the like from engulfing our best farmland. This will take more than mere legislation and county zoning. This will take some give-and-take cooperation among the many interests other than farmers that want our best land. It will take a spirit of good will and good will that it will also take more pound-weights and

At the end of the audience the Pope gave Cardinal Micara a large but unspecified sum for the poor of Rome.

Two SCIENCE workshops will be conducted on IBSIS (Biological Sciences Curriculum Study), July 27-31; and on Chemistry for Biology Teachers, July 15-Aug. 1. A third workshop on TV Education will continue throughout the session.
